The Art & Heart of Teaching: Managing a Middle School Classroom

How do you cope with the roller coaster of early adolescence? How do you manage a class of 35 students and keep your sense of humor? Back by popular demand is Debbie Silver from the National Middle School Association. Debbie is an award winning educator, an author, a humorist, a storyteller, and a true friend of middle level education. Join us for two days as we try to accomplish the following:

1. Finding your own management style keeping practices consistent with your goals
2. Discussing proactive measures to limit disruptive behavior
3. Troubleshooting problem areas
4. Analyzing student motivation (extrinsic versus intrinsic rewards)
5. Examining stress management techniques for middle school teachers

(This course is brand new. It is not a repeat of the class Debbie Silver taught last summer on differentiation.)
