

Anchorage School District
NCLB Highly Qualified
Major Equivalency and Social Studies

All teachers who teach a core subject are required to be highly qualified (HQ) by June 30, 2006.

For a teacher to be highly qualified under NCLB, the following qualifications must be met:

- Full state certification and
- Minimum of bachelor's degree and
- Demonstrate subject area competency.

Among the options for demonstrating subject area competency, a teacher may use the education option. The education option for attaining an HQ designation includes:

1. Degree in content area or
2. Posted major in content area or
3. Major Equivalency (30 semester credits in content area).

For those seeking an HQ designation in Social Studies and using the Major Equivalency HQ option, the following combination of semester credits in the areas and ranges noted (to ≥ 30 semester hour credits) is required:

Minimum	Maximum	Area
15	24	History
6	9	Gov't/Civics/Political Science
0	9	Geography
0	9	Economics
0	9	Behavioral Sciences

Middle and High School Social Studies Department Chairs and the Social Studies Curriculum Coordinator determined the parameters noted in the table above.

Do college/university ED-prefix courses count toward core content credit?

ED-prefix classes do not count toward the 30 credit major equivalency when education is the option being used for acquiring an HQ designation.
