

Google Additional Services Consent

Teachers use a variety of online educational tools and resources to enhance the education of our students. These services may be free or may be contracted by the district and include tools and features that can enhance learning and collaboration.

The following Google Workspace Additional Services used by the district to deliver curricular content or applications collect information for other commercial purposes, and require parent or guardian consent for students under 18:

Consent is entirely voluntary but students who do not have permission will be unable to participate in activities conducted online that use these additional services, but they will still have access to Google's core education tools (e.g., Google Drive, Google Classroom). The Anchorage School District is not allowed to make exceptions. Classroom teachers may provide alternative assignments for students who are excluded from using these online services.

Do you consent to your child using these services?

☐ YES, I give consent for my child to use these services.
