Klatt News

It's a wonderful day to be a Klatt Puma!!

Klatt Families

Good Afternoon! I hope you all had some time this weekend to refresh away from a computer screen. Fall is in the air as we move into the thickness of the first quarter. We are into the meat of core academics. Please realize that if they haven't already done so, the teachers will start tightening up expectations for engagement and due dates on Math and English Language Arts assignments. Students, it is important for you to keep up with your work and be diligent in participating in class.

School Items

Distribution:

If you missed the item pick up last week. Please make sure you contact the office and/or your teacher to receive paper items as soon as possible! ALSO – if you have books from LAST YEAR – please return them via the Library Curbside program. Deliveries can be arranged if pick up is not possible.

Every Friday from 1-3 library book distribution. Teachers will contact you if they are providing other materials during this time!

Library:

Books belong in student's hands, not on shelves, so we are thrilled to announce that the Klatt library's curbside pickup program will begin next week! The current plan is to run the program Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11 am - 3 pm, but hours will be adjusted if it turns out families need additional options. Items must be reserved in advance at

Attendance

We look forward and highly encourage students to be present at all Zoom times scheduled by their teacher. Here at Klatt, we are working to support students in their online education to the best of our abilities. We acknowledge that it is not the same as face to face learning, but also know that participation and the opportunities to ask questions is essential. We also understand all families are in unique circumstances and situations.

Guidelines to teachers consist of; if a student were active in Canvas for a substantive amount of time in, tuned in assignments or attended a live zoom session, they should be marked present for the day.
