Students Reflect Thoughtfully on Future

On day one of the new quarter, Mr. Thomas Pease facilitated a quick-write activity focused on students' hopes for the future. Students wrote thoughtfully about what they looked forward to being able to do once the threat of Covid-19 has passed and it is safe again to go out into the world and interact directly with others. It is clear that students are thinking mostly about their friends and families, as they look forward to family vacations and reengaging with their friend groups. Mr. Pease, along with the other teachers on Mears staff, is doing a tremendous job of weaving important questions relevant to students' lives into daily curriculum. Self-reflection and empathy for others are critical components of teens' personal and social development.

Math Mindset: Engage & Persist

This week, Mears math teachers welcomed back their students from 1st quarter and they picked up right where they left off. In Ms. DeMoss' Math 7 class, students reviewed the Distributive Property and jumped right into practicing problems. Like other teachers in the Math Department, Ms. DeMoss emphasizes the importance of effort, engagement, and persistence. Such characteristics are a key element of the "math mindset," which encourages students to take academic risks and to view mistakes as an essential part of learning.

Guidance and Tips for Students Taking the i-Ready Diagnostic at Home

Beginning next week, all students will be taking the i-Ready diagnostic for the second time this year. This assessment is especially designed to show academic growth and progress for our students since the beginning of the year.

Mon-Tues, Jan. 11-12 -- Math
Thurs-Fri, Jan. 14-15 -- Reading

Going into next week, there are some important things to keep in mind:

1. The purpose of this second i-Ready diagnostic is to show how much growth each student has made since the first quarter. Therefore, it is important that all students give their very best effort.
2. The results of the assessment will assist teachers in targeting areas of academic growth for each student. We want to be sure all of our students are high school ready.
3. Students should be sure to do all their own work on the assessment. We need to be sure, for the reasons mentioned above, that the results are a true representation of each student's true academic skills.

Recently Updated: ASD's Health and Safety Covid Matrix

ASD's planning and decision-making process for determining the District's risk level for conducting school takes multiple community factors into consideration. The District conducts this process in close conversation with the Municipality of Anchorage and the State of Alaska Department of Health and Social Services.

In recent months, organizations such as the Center for Disease Control, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the World Health Organization have expanded their guidance and resources regarding safely providing public education. This new information includes a range of metrics and other criteria that allows districts, in close coordination with state and local health officials, to revise and adapt school opening guidelines based on the unique context of their community.
